R. C. WOULD SECURE VISITING NURSE

DR. BELL AND G. R. ELLISON TO CONSULT DIVISION HEADS

MISS TURNER APPOINTED

Chapter Matters Discussed at Executive Board Meeting; Mrs. Hankins Publicity Chairman

The securing of a Red Cross community nurse for Nodaway county was the most important consideration before the executive board meeting of the Red Cross last night. A committee composed of two members of the board, Dr. C. T. Bell and G. R. Ellison, was appointed and commissioned to confer with the headquarters of the southwest division at St. Louis regarding this appointment. This committee was also instructed to find suitable headquarters for the Nurse's work and arrange the other details necessary. It is expected that a visiting nurse can be secured to take up her work here by February 1.

The president, Dr. Will Wallis, Jr., and secretary, F. S. King, were appointed a committee to find a permanent location for the Red Cross headquarters.

Miss Bettie Turner, secretary, and George Robb Ellison, chairman of the home service section, were re-appointed to their work for the coming year. Mrs. Bernice Hankins was appointed chairman of publicity for the county.

The executive board is composed of Dr. Will Wallis, Jr., president; C. R. Harmon, Pickering, vice president; F. S. King, secretary and treasurer; R. P. Hosmer, J. F. Colby, Dr. E. C. Braniger, Bruce Montgomery, G. R. Ellison, J. F. Hull and Dr. C. T. Bell.

Other plans for work after the membership drive collections are finished were discussed. Of the funds collected during the roll call now on sixty per cent of the membership collection remains with the local chapter for alleviating community conditions, and twenty per cent of each magazine subscription is retained by the local chapter. The remainder goes into the national chapter funds.

PRESBYTERIANS OF MISSOURI MADE GAIN DURING YEAR

Second in List of Nine Synods Showing Increase; Praised Congress For Prohibition Action

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—The Missouri Synod of the Presbyterian church was second on a list of nine synods which gained in membership during the year, according to the report of Dr. Harry C. Rogers, chairman of the committee on evangelism, read at the final session of the convention of Missouri Presbyterians in North Church.

Despite the fact that it was pointed out that he is not only a Presbyterian, but an elder in the church, President was criticised for vetoing the prohibition bill and congress was praised for repassing the bill over his veto, in resolutions adopted by the convention, in which plans were outlined by the Presbyterians to co-operate with state and federal authorities and the anti-saloon league in seeing that the prohibition law is enforced.

CHOOSING NATION'S WOULD-BE HEAD

ACTIVE DISCUSSION OF PRE-CONVENTION POSSIBILITIES

NO SURE CHIEF IN SIGHT

Many Names Mentioned by Both Parties; Interesting Developments With Disposal of Peace Treaty

By DAVID M. CHURCH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 4.—"Picking the presidential candidates" is the great indoor sport of congress these days.

Between intervals of debate on the peace treaty and discussion of strikes members of congress spend their time in the cloakrooms discussing potential presidential candidates. "The Winter League of Politics" is well under way and as soon as the peace treaty is disposed of there will be interesting political developments.

Most of the potential candidates who are waiting for the lightning to strike are in the senate. The Democrats have a few possible candidates who are in private life and some who are in the cabinet, but Republicans are at present popularly supposed to be resting their hopes on certain senators.

Official Washington generally picks its pre-convention candidates from the senate. The convention generally upsets these selections and the United States is yet to have a president who has been a senator. The most of the presidential gossip is heard at the capitol and principally in the senate cloakrooms, although house members are active in their favorite son booms.

Progressive Republicans now are laying their bets on Senator Hiram Johnson of California as the next Republican candidate. These bets are not without takers, however, for other Republican senators who are acknowledged to be in the race include Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington; Senator Kellogg of Minnesota; Senator Knox of Pennsylvania; Senator Lodge of Massachusetts; Senator Harding of Ohio; Senator Watson of Indiana and Senator Cummins of Iowa. These are but a few of the names that have been mentioned, for there is hardly a man who reaches the senate who doesn't bob up at some time or another as a possible candidate for president.

In the Democratic camp the gossip runs considerably outside of the halls of congress. Theer are three candidates most frequently mentioned. These are former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and Senator Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska.

President Wilson's illness has given greater confidence to the potential candidates in the Democratic party. They are now convinced that the possibilities of a third term for the present incumbent are slight and they are setting in with a vim to get away with a good start toward the convention honors.

Friends of former Secretary McAdoo rely upon his record as a public official and his connection with the present leader of the Democratic party to win for them. Attorney General Palmer's boosters are counting upon the personality of their candidate and his efforts to reduce the high cost of living. Senator Hitchcock's boom rides on the League of Nations band wagon, for he is put forth as the leader of that cause, which, it is predicted, will assuredly be an issue in the coming campaign.

Among those who are now also mentioned are Senator Pomerene of Ohio; Senator Myers of Montana; Bernard M. Baruch, Colonel House, Senator Underwood and Vice President Marshall.

Of course, there are some very likely candidates in the states, including a few governors and some military men and also a few business men. Official Washington, however, never counts on candidates outside of official life until the votes are counted at the conventions.

ILLINOIS MEN WOULD EMPLOY NODAWAY COUNTY METHODS

Champaign Chamber of Commerce Writes for Plans; Farmers Join Maryville Organization

A request was received this morning by George A. Pickens, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, from Hugh E. Corbett of Champaign, Ill., secretary of the Champaign Chamber of Commerce, asking that Mr. Pickens send the copies of the page newspaper advertisements that the Maryville organization has been using in its campaign for boosting and bettering Nodaway county.

These ads were a part of the "Selling a Community to Itself" campaign ideas which Mr. Pickens took and placed on exhibition last week at the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries held in Indianapolis.

The Nodaway county exhibit attracted a large amount of notice at the convention and the request this morning is only one of many made to Mr. Pickens by other secretaries who wish to apply similar methods in a home-boosting plan.

The weekly luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce was held last night with no business to be transacted except the usual routine affairs. Three new memberships were received, those of F. C. Barber and two sons of Skidmore, prominent farmers and stock raisers, whose support will be a decided aid to the organization.

Prominent Citizens at Punta Gorda, Fla., Express Regret at Taking Away of Old Friend

A number of friends of Co. James T. Hughes in Punta Gorda, Fla., have sent his relatives in Maryville a letter expressing their sympathy. Col. Hughes has spent the winter months of the past several years in Punta Gorda and was preparing to leave for that town when he was stricken on the evening of October 20 and died a few hours afterwards.

The letter is as follows:

"It was a very great shock to us all to hear of the death of Col. James Thomas Hughes. We were all looking forward with pleasure of seeing him soon again in our midst. Please express to his relatives and friends our sympathy in their loss. Alas, we shall see his face no more, but our memories will long cherish the kindly genial gentleman so long our friend and the friend of all."

It was signed by thirty-two prominent citizens of that town.

MISSION WORKER AMONG HINDU, SPEAKS AT CHURCH

Dr. Jennie Flemming Addresses Audience at First Christian Church Yesterday Afternoon

Dr. Jennie Flemming, a mission worker who has been stationed in India for the past thriteen years, working under the direction of Christian church foreign mission board, spoke yesterday afternoon at the First Christian church before a large audience.

A special invitation had been made to all the missionary organizations of the city and to the entire public to hear the talk of Dr. Fleming. Preceding the address, Mrs. F. P. Robinson sang a solo.

Dr. Fleming spoke for a hour telling of her work among the Hindoo peoples in the provinces of Kulpahar, Hurda and Maudha. She speaks the Hindo language fluently and she told in interesting detail of her work and the conditions in India, particularly among the women and children and of the progress that is being made by the mission workers. All joined in the singing of America at the close, singing with greater spirit of thankfulness after hearing of the conditions in another country so inferior to their native land.

Dr. Fleming is spending a year's furlough in the states and is visiting her mother at Columbia, Mo. Both mother and daughter have been guests here for a few days of the J. E. O'Neal family.

STRIKE AFFAIRS DEAD-LOCK TODAY

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION ON EITHER SIDE

Official Opinions Vary; Indiana Farmers' Federation Expected to Figure Strongly in Settlement

The situation on the fourth day of th estrike is that about four hundred miners are reported out who demand regular work of thirty hours a week and sixty per cent increase over present pay. The latest official estimates of the purchasing power of a dollar compared to July, 1914 is about 57 cents, and the latest official estimate of the purchase of a dollar in November 1917, when new wage schedule went into effect was about 80 cents.

The operators are willing to arbitrate if the strike is called off. The federal government is willing to appoint arbitrators if the men return to mines thus putting themselves again within the law.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—That the officials of the mine workers do not intend to rescind the original strike order until their hand is forced by the government, was intimated by Actin President Lewis to the International News Service today. When informed Wallace, Washington representative of the miners, had intimated the miners are willing to eal loff the strike if the operators will present counter porposal, Lewis after a moment deliberation declared "I don't believe he said that."

Washington, Nov. 4.—A special committee of three members to be appointed by the president to deal with the soft coal strike and attempt to arbitrate and settle the strike is provided for in a joint resolution introduced in the senate this afternoon by Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa. The resolution was referred to the senate committeee of education and labor.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—The first break among the non-union workers in the unorganized coal fields of Pennsylvania, came today when several hundred men failed to go into the mines of Mercer county.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—A hundred thousand organized farmers of Indiana are expected to figure strongly in the settlement of the coal controversy. This was apparent today when officials of the State federation of farmers associations met and named a committee to investigate the strike.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—President Farrington of the Illinois coal miners union declared today there was every indication of a prolonged coal strike. This statement was made in an exclusive interview following an emphasis of the fact that not one of ninety thousand Illinois miners were at work except authorized by the union.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—Despite professed optimism in Washington official circles over the coal strike situation, the Indiana officials are today making plans to cope with a prolonged tie-up of the mines of the country. Lightless nights are in prospects in the Indiana cities.

Denver, Nov. 4.—With approximately five thousand of the twelve thousand coal miners in Colorado already back to work and further conferences scheduled for today, it is believed the strike in this district will be of short durance.

SHOE PRICES WILL GO UP SO MANUFACTURERS DECLARE

No Indication of a Recession in Prices In the Near Future; Desirable Leather Scarce

The people who received the idea that shoe prices would take a big drop after the first of the year are laboring under a false impression, according to J. F. McElwain, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers. At a meeting of the association held in New York City early in October, the report of much lower prices to be expected in a few months gained credence, but the following statement given out by the association head says that report is unfounded:

"The fact is, there has been a decline of approximately 20 per cent in the price of hides from the high point reached in August. It, however, must be borne in mind that shoe prices have never reached the high peak represented by the August price of hides, and have in realyity been based on hide values no higher and in many cases considerably lower than now prevail.

"Shoe factories have today a larger volume of orders on hand than can be taken care of during the next three or fodr months. During that period they will require a large quantity of hides, leather and other supplies. Desirable leather is extremely scarce and cannot be quickly obtained.

"There is, therefore, no indication of a recession in the price of shoes in the near future."

AMERICANISM PLUS

The Red Cross, while fulfilling America's obligation to the stricken people in other places, must repond to the call at home to meet the greater peace-time responsibilities revealed by the cessation of war. This means:

AT HOME

I. Organization of the nation's Health forces by co-operation with existing agencies and by independent action in unorganized communities. Education of housewives, school children and other groups in food preparation, home hygiene and care of the sick.

II. Expansion of Home Service in those communities where no similar service exists to provide the same help to civilian families that has been given families of our fighting men. (In ninty per cent of the Home Service communities there existed no similar agency.) Providing an Information Service to explain facilities offered by the government and private sources. Inspiring co-operative effort to make communities safer and better places in which to live.

III. Emergency relief in epidemics and disaster.

IV. Permanent duty with the Army and Navy.

V. Helping the nation's fighters back to civilian life.

VI. Child welfare work.

VII. First Aid.

IN EUROPE

I. Relieving distress among war sufferers and helping their countries recover from the war.

II. Distribution of surplus stores donated by the American army.

"The master-problem of civilization is to engage as many people with as much enthusiasm in the upbuilding processes of peace as, by the traditions of the ages, it has always been possible to enlist in the destructive adventure of war. When people shall have learned to sacrifice themselves as readily on the alter of the commonwealth as they sacrifice themselves on the alters of war the world will be saved, not until then."

A Year of Prosperity

This year has been one of general prosperity, and yet many people can count very little financial gain owing to increased costs of everything.

By financial gain.

The man who cannot accumulate in prosperous times surely will not gain much if times become hard. In other words he should "make hay while the sun shines."

A good banking connection is more help to a man when he is making money than at any other time, and this bank takes a personal interest in helping its patrons in every possible way. Perhaps we can help you. Why not try it?

DRIVE OPENING MARKED BY "RED CROSS SUNDAY"

FIRST REPORTS TO EACH STATE HEADQUARTERS INDICATE SUCCESS OF CAMPAIGN.

WAR-TIME ENTHUSIASM OF LAST YEAR REVIVED

General Pershing Is Among Prominent Speakers Who Are Devoting Energies to Red Cross in Roll Call Behalf.

With the inception of the Third Red Cross Roll Call, Sunday, November 2, the opening day was observed as "Red Cross Sunday" in thousands of churches throughout Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma, and a vast force of men and women workers began the task of garnering Red Cross memberships for the coming year.

Clergymen, in pulpits of all denominations, referred to the humanitarian attributes of the Red Cross in sermons prepared especially for the occasion and Red Cross tributes, in some instances, augmented the usual morning and evening devotional services.

Preliminary reports reaching campaign managers in each state indicate an increasing volume of interest in the drive that augurs well for its successful conclusion. The quota for the Southwestern Division is set at 2,000,000 members, while the nation-wide campaign has for its objective the attainment of 20,000,000 members. Officials in charge of the drive expect the Southwestern Division to exceed its quota by 500,000, and state quotas have been assigned on tais basis. The quotas follow: Missourl, 700,000; Kansas, 400,000; Texas, 800,000; Arsansas, 200,000; Oklahoma, 400,000.

The opening of the drive found the Red Cross organization, which slowly has been mobilizing for months, ready for the job in hand. In a manner that recalls vividly the war-time enthusiasm of a year ago uniformed women workers magically have appeared in each city, town and coun', to solicit memberships. A house-to-house canvass is now being carried or Women Workers Re-enlisting.

Groups of women whose services were rendered so generously during the war have re-enlisted. Canteen workers, nurses and nurses' aids, motor transport corps workers, surgical dressing workers, knitters and gament workers, all are asked to extend their efforts again to the utmost to help establish the Rer Cross firmly upon a peace basis.

Thousands of clubs and fraternal organizations will observe a "Red Cross" day during Roll Call week by special luncheons, dinners and meetings, at which speakers will tell the story of the Red Cross and its future. In many cases motion pictures illustrative of its work will be shown.

Former Fighters Help.

Returned soldiers, sailors and marines have enlisted in large numbers to assist in the campaign, grateful for the manifold comforts and services provided for them by the Red Cross. As members of the American Legion and as individuals, thousands of returned "Yanks" and "gobs" will become volunteer canvassers for Red Cross memberships during Roll Call, up to its close, on Armistice Day, November 11. In some places veterans of the world war are directing the campaign. All such workers will be in uniform.

Permission has been granted to all present and former Red Cross workers to wear their regulation Red Cross uniforms while engaged in campaign work. This permission applies to all nurses, foreign service workers, field service directors, canteen, motor corps and chapter workers.

One of the most remarkable mobilizations of speaking talent that has ever volunteered for an effort of this kind will go into action for the duration of the drive. Former American ambassadors, high Army officers, Cabinet officials, a flying squadron of Red Cross overseas nurses and other workers, State Governors, members of Congress, clergymen, editors, business men, returned fighters and even laborers, will speak in behalf of the Red Cross during Roll Call week.

General Pershing to Speak

Foremost among those who have volunteered is General Pershing. Others are Former Ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, and former Ambassador to Turkey, Abram I. Elkus. Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer has consented to give whatever spare moments he has to making Red Cross appeals, and other members of the Cabinet are being called upon.

Women of national prominence are out on speaking tours for the Roll Call, notably Miss Mabel T. Boardman, of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Larz Anderson, of Boston, and Dr. Esther C. Lovejoy, of Portland, Oregon. Red Cross nurses, many of them decorated for bravery overseas, are speaking in the interests of the peace-time health program of the Red Cross.

Big "I" Little "You"

By THERESA MAY BOGART

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Prosperity had spoiled Clifton Day and he was not aware of it. Isabel Blair was, consciously. They had been good friends and verging on something nearer and dearer, when the tide came in the affairs of Clifton. He drifted with the current, took his good fortune as fully deserved and blossomed out into the spendthrift and autocrat complete.

Isabel was disappointed in a person she had really liked. As a humble, plodding clerk in an abstract office, Clifton had been modest, moderate and contented. An advertisement in a newspaper designating half a dozen towns, where the Central Manufacturing company was desirous of establishing branches, caught the eye of Clifton, one day. He answered it, proving that he knew the Belleville district thoroughly, gave good references and was forthwith appointed official representative of the company at a salary of three thousand dollars per year and commissions.

"I'm like a partner in the firm," he vauntingly announced. "Have my own stenographer use of an automobile, hire and fire and work easy and pay good." The Central Manufacturing company specialized in a mineral fertilizer and cement. Clifton was supplied with several tons of booklets, circulars and stationery. His set task was to educate the district up to the use of the special brands put out by the company and gradually build up a permanent trade.

"It ought to be easy," commented a local gossip, "you being acquainted with every man in the county."

"Easy as falling off a log," replied Clifton in a self-sufficient way, and purchased his fourth new suit.

The day that the local newspaper grandiloquently referred to the fact that "our ambitious young townsman" had allowed himself to accept an important position, its columns also contained an item to the effect that Miss Beatrice Merton was one of the heirs to the estate of a relative in another county. During the initial days of his rise in the world Clifton had continued his bi-weekly visits to the Blair home. Already Isabel had noticed and deplored the change in him. He had become boastful, almost blatant. She was poor and worked in a bank as an underpaid typist.

Beatrice Merton now came in for full attention. Isabel attributed this disloyal choice by Clifton to the ability of Beatrice to dress well and her prospective fortune.

One day as Clifton was seated in his office on tilted swivel chair, his elegantly encased feet on the desk and smoking a big cigar, there entered a young man who presented a card bearing the name of the company, and under it: "Arthur Barry, Traveling Auditor."

"I am inspecting the new branches," he announced.

Clifton expanded. He began telling of how he was popularizing himself and the company by giving a series of banquets and the like. His cigar bills showed that he was no niggard. His jaunts about the county, though expensive, indicated that he was keeping in touch with affairs. It was all "I—I—" and his quiet-mannered caller did not resent in words the palpable intimation that "I" was probably the most valuable agent the company had ever employed, and "You" a mere cog in the big machine and a mere perfunctory quantity.

Mr. Arthur Barry, as he designated himself, made neither comment nor suggestion. He examined the books and took an automobile trip over the county. Isabel had heard of him, had seen him on the street, and was a good deal surprised as she reached home from her banking duties one afternoon to find him awaiting her.

"I have ventured to intrude upon you, Miss Blair," he said, "because I have some letters and reports to be written for headquarters. I cannot find any public typist here, and, if you can spare me a couple of evenings, the compensation will be liberal. I wish to say, however, that the work must be regarded as strictly confidential."

It was so confidential that Isabel almost gasped after dictation the first evening. A wise and observant young man this handsome, well-bred stranger must be, for the ruthless, rigid manner in which he showed up the haphazard, hit-or-miss business tactics of Clifton was drastic in the extreme. The second evening wound up with a telegram to headquarters. It said: "Send on a substitute for the greatest egotist and most incompetent agent in our employ." And the "our" was explained by the fact that the telegram was signed "Volney Thearle," who quietly told Isabel that he was the junior controlling element in the Central Manufacturing company.

He waited until the substitute arrived, which consumed a week. It was pleasantly spent, however, for calling at the Blair home had become a habit, and the blossoming friendship presaged a romance. Then the facts in the case came out. Clifton Day hid his discomfiture by finding a new minor position in another town. Divested of the income adequate to entertain Miss Beatrice Merton in a luxurious style, that young lady discarded him. As to Miss Blair and Mr. Thearle, they became to one another Isabel and Volney.

LOG OF AN AIRSHIP.

We slipped the ropes at Singapore,
The time was half past three;
We shot into a bank of clouds
That hid the open sea.
The sun went down, the moon arose,
But neither could we spy,
For wrapped about in rolling clouds
We wallowed through the sky.

'Twas morning, for we knew it by
The amber light around,
Our ship in clouds like clammy shrouds
Continued to be bound.
The days went by; our latitude
And longitude were nil,
For we were sailing on and on
Through leaden vapors still.

Our voyage neared its end; gray clouds
Were heavy overhead,
And clouds beneath us everywhere
Like fields of lilies spread.
"We must be off the coast of France,"
Our captain cried aloud,
And then we landed and behold!
We found 'twas in Saint Cloud.

—Minna Irving.

BEGAN WITH GLAZED FRAMES

Gigantic Modern Greenhouses Have Grown From Simple Idea of the Seventeenth Century.

Like everything else, the modern greenhouse is a product of evolution. It began in the seventeenth century under the form of glazed frames set in front of a wall on which fruit trees were trained to keep the sun's light and heat within. Also later, to conserve the heat of a flue within the wall. Then it became a room, with windows for the storage of plants in winter, like the orangeries at Versailles and elsewhere.

Gradually the windows grew larger, but even up to the beginning of the nineteenth century a roof was considered unnecessary, as it was believed that glass overhead would allow the artificial heat within to escape.

As soon as it was discovered that the roof could be glazed as well as the sides without undue loss of heat, the modern greenhouse came into being, the supports diminished to the minimum required to support the glass, and, as might be expected, the latest thing in glass houses is a steel frame with the lateral supports almost suppressed and with even bent panes of glass replacing the old-fashioned eaves. Thus the greenhouse has continually traveled further from the architecture from which it first arose.

ORIGINAL SHYLOCK NOT JEW

New York Scholar Brings Evidence to Show That Shakespeare's Character Was a Christian.

That Shylock was not a Jew is the contention made by Dr. Maurice Packard, professor of clinical medicine at New York Polyclinic Hospital Medical school. Writing with a great deal of passion as well as scholarship, Doctor Packard has developed an argument that shows the prototype of Shakespeare's character was not a Jew but a Christian named Secchi, who actually did wager a pound of his own flesh against the thousand scudi of a Jew named Antonio. This wager was declared void by Pope Sixtus V.

Subsequently the parts played by the principals in the case were reversed by legend. Shakespeare took the inaccurate version on which to base his famous play, making, however, no use of the wager motive. Doctor Packard has no difficulty in showing that Shylock, as the immortal dramatist portrays him, is not true to Jewish type, but fulfills the demands of public opinion of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. At the same time Doctor Packard pays an ungrudging tribute to the immortal bard for "his protests against the cruel treatment and unutterable persecution of a class of human beings too little understood."

Word "Anzac" of Simple Origin.

How the word "Anzac" was first used is, of course, a little story in itself. It is a story of telegraphic code, as a matter of fact, for Anzac was merely Sir W. R. Birdwood's code word, chosen by him to serve as telegraphic address for the Australian and New Zealand corps when he took command. He may not have realized that, in coining a word from the initial letters of important distinguishing words, he was following a well-known method of advertising experts in devising trade names for goods of particular quality; nevertheless, the Anzacs were "the goods," and they deserved, as they received, the name which they, and nobody else, could make famous.

Why Is a Farm Bureau?

A live farm bureau is one of the busiest organiaztions in a county. Just how busy it can be may be realized by learning what the Cass county farm bureau is doing this year. The bureau is conducting the following number of demonstrations dealing with the subjects named: 51 with soybeans, 14 hog feeding, 4 soil saving, 22 poultry culling, 11 oats smut control, 12 alfalfa production, 3 killing army worms, 8 orchard spraying, 8 wheat smut control and 46 fertilizer demonstrations. The bureau is promoting the following associations: farm loan live stock breeders, Shorthorn breeders, Hereford breeders, Poland-China breeders, and fifteen community organizations besides four calf clubs, with a total of 157 calves. In the meantime the bureau has found time to locate 1,108 bushels of seed corn, test 5,889 ears of seed corn and sell $30,561 worth of products this year.

Perhaps this will answer the question, "Why is a farm bureau?"

SENATOR SPENCER GETS IN TROUBLE FROM BOTH SIDES

Talked Wet and Voted Dry, It is Said; Machine and Anti-Saloon League Are Both Against Him

St. Louis, Nov. 3.—As a result of his voting for the re-passage of the prohibition enforcement bill over the president's veto, United States Senator Spencer finds himself in a rather awkward position.

Following the public announcement of Republican party leaders that Senator Spencer could expect no further support from the Republican machine, which was largely instrumental in electing him, as a result of his voting for the overriding of the President's veto, the Missouri Anti-Saloon League came out in a public announcement that it will henceforth and forevermore withhold political support from th Missouri senator.

Rev. W. C. Shapp, president of the Anti-Saloon League and leader of the dry forces in the state, in a statement in a St. Louis newspaper, was said to have declared:

"Spencer has talked wet and voted dry. If he had taken a clear cut position for prohibition and adhered to it he might have had the support of our organiaztion, but he will not get it now in spite of his vote to override the veto. I did not know at the time he ran in the last senatorial election that he had pledged himself to the wet interest. It now appears that from statements of Republican leaders, that he did give a secret pledge. His conduct in trying to keep solid with both sides has relieved us of any obligation to support him."

MISSOURI NEWS LETTER.

St. Louis, Nov. 3.—The question of whether land development in Missouri, as well as the remainder of the United States, should be financed by the government or private interests, will, it is expected, be the cause of war mdebate at the National Drainage Congress here November 11 to 13. Doc Brydon, commissioner of the department of land reclamation for Missouri, has just finished a state-wide tour and reports unusual interest in the coming meeting.

There are two factions in the congress—one favoring governmental development and the other development by private interests.

St. Louis, Nov. 3.—Within the next twenty-four hours, it was believed this morning, the actual work of alleviating fuel shortage resulting in Missouri from the strike of soft coal miners, which began Saturday morning, will be well under way.

In conformance with orders from Railway Director Hines in Washington, who has been placed in direct charge of fuel distribution, Regional Director B. F. Bush of St. Louis has selected a committee of three, who, with a fourth man to be appointed by Fuel Administrator Garfield, will take direct charge of confiscation and distribution of all coal in transit on the railroads in the region. Headquarters of the committee will be in St. Louis. The personnel of this committee was expected to be announced today, Director Bush having withheld the names of his appointees until the fourth member is announced by Dr. Garfield.

All coal now in transit in the region will be confiscated at once and distributed according to the priority list published Friday.

The strike situation in Missouri was uncertain this morning. Indications were that most of the 9,000 organized miners had gone out Saturday, but Saturday being All Saints Day, and a dull day in the mines anyhow, and Sunday being a regular holiday for miners, it was deemed that actual count on the number of strikers could not be made until noon today.

Reports have shown that the organized miners, almost to a man, have stuck to their jobs all over the state. At Fulton the miners, who do not belong to the United Mine Workers, decided to remain at work provided coal was not sold outside of the community. They expressed themselves as favoring the union miners, but were willing to produce coal for the people of their immediate community.

Columbus, Nov. 3.—A teachers' union to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, has been organized, with seven professors of the University of Missouri as members. A campaign is being made to enlarge the membership. Prof. Jesse Wrench of the history department was elected president of the union.

Kansas City, Nov. 3.—The Kansas City delegation to the state teachers' convention in St. Louis, which opens November 10, will have instructions to vote against any plan to unionize the teachers of Missouri for the purpose of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. A canvass of the 1,600 teachers in the city showed that less than a dozen favored joining the Federation of Labor ranks.

Liberia has a population consisting of some 60,000 immigrants from the United States and their descendants and 2,000,000 natives. The capital is Monrovia and the government is a republic modeled after that of the United States.

Japan will use 1,000,000 bales of American cotton this year.

Does It Cost You Anything to Haul Your Crops to Market?

You bet it does. And horse haulng is becoming more and more expensive every year. Not only that, but it is becoming too slow and inconvenient—just like driving a horse and buggy instead of a car.

"Ship by Truck" is a slogan that is going to cut the cost of distribution of manufactured goods, but it is just as important for farmers to cut the costs of production and to increase their efficiency as for any other class of business man—or more so—because increased land values and increased production costs will eat up his profits unless he does adopt methods to overcome them.

The Sandow Truck

will be the greatest help in cutting hauling costs and making it possible to raise and market more produce. It is a truck made for JUST THE KIND OF WORK the farmer wants a truck to do. It is not a light, cheap make-shift, but an extra strong, durable, dependable truck.

The Sandow is made in 1, 1¼, 1½, 2, 3½ and 5-ton sizes. The prices are lower than most trucks of the same class and we think it is a better truck than any other at anything like the price.

It will never be possible to buy so good a truck, nor one that will really serve the farmers' purpose for less than the Sandow is now selling for. It will pay you to see us about the Sandow while you are considering your hauling problems.

TRADE MARK REG.

The Greatest Improvement In Riding Comfort Since The Introduction of Pneumatic Tires

HERE is a brand new type of car. It solves the problem which has baffled automotive engineers—how to combine riding comfort with light weight and economy.

These are the first springs of their kind and they are made of chrome vanadium steel. They are exclusive with Overland.

Because of these springs, Overland 4 combines the riding qualities of large heavy, expensive, long wheelbase cars, together with the advantages and economy of small light cars.

With 100-inch wheelbase, Overland 4 has the luxurious riding ease of 130-inch Springbase.

The exclusive, Three-Point Cantilever Springs cushion the car so that it rides well on all roads: they reduce choppy rebounds and side swaying, protect the car from road shocks and prolong its life, minimize twisting or racking of frame and body, enable the car to hold the road better.

The car and passengers ride smoothly as though floating, free from road shocks that the springs ward off.

High quality materials insure durability. All vital parts of the front axle and steering gear and all highly stressed gears and shafts for driving the car are made of alloy steel.

The equipment list of Overland 4 is high grade, including Auto-Lite Starter and Lighting System—Electric Horn—Marshall Divan Upholstery Springs—Demountable Rims—Three Speed Transmission—Slanting Rain Vision Windshield—Tillotson Carburetor—U. In every respect Overland 4 is a quality car. The body is all steel, all enamel, the brightest, hardest, most lasting finish.

Overland 4 has been tested for two years and more than 250,000 miles over the Rocky Mountains, prairies, through deep mud and scorching deserts—through quick sharp climatic changes. As a result of these tests we were able to judge the car's performance under every condition and to perfect it before offering it to the public.

There is no previous car of any size or price to adequately compare with the character of service Overland 4 introduces.

DEFENDED SUGAR POLICIES OF U. S.

HOOVER'S TESTIMONY BEFORE COMMITTE RECALLED

NOT WASTED IN EUROPE

American Sales and Gifts There Held Not Responsible for Shortage by the Food Expert

Washington, Nov. 4.—With continued federal control of sugar and a more stringent allocation of sugar supplies in sight, the recent testimony of Herbert Hoover, former food administrator, before the Johnson subcommittee investigating war expenditures threw an interesting side light on the administration's policy with regard to sugar, both during and since the war. During the war it was absolutely necessary to control the sugar supply, and since that time President Wilson has been advised by followers of two different schools of economic action. The administration has followed the advice that recommended control and consequently assured low prices. Recommendation has now been made for further control and allocation by the chairman of the United States sugar equalization board.

Of the two theories advanced, one class of advisors recommended to the president that the ban of federal control and international agreement be lifted and in its place unrestrained competition for the Cuban and other important crops be allowed. This would mean that the highest bidder among the nations would get the available crops, but the consumer would have to pay the price of this competition. There was no prediction as to how high sugar might go under this plan. The other plan was to continue federal control and international buying and allocation, permitting purchase at a reasonable price, and thus keeping sugar, even during the war and shortage period, as low as ten and eleven cents a pound. This was the course pursued by the government.

Hoover Cleared Up a Point.

Congressman Bland, junior Republican member of the committee, had Mr. Hoover called before the committee to inquire whether or not the sugar given away for relief abroad and sold to foreign government through the A. E. F. and the army sales agency in France was not responsible for the present sugar shortage. Mr. Hoover hastened to disabuse the minds of the committee on this point, declaring that the cause of the present shortage was an increased consumption of sugar on the part of the American people. This increase, beginning in the spring of this year, and apparently aggravated by prohibition, according to the witness, has risen from a normal of 73 pounds per year per person to 93 pounds per person. The highest known consumption heretofore, Mr. Hoover stated, has been 84 pounds per person.

Getting down to specific questions, Mr. Hoover assured the committee that there was consumed every day in the United States a little over six million pounds of sugar for the manufacture of candy alone. This, he said, was the approximate amount of sugar given away by the United States relief commission to the stricken countries abroad. Speaking of the sugar given to Russian prisoners, he declared that this country had given away only one-twentieth of one day's candy making supply to the Russians.

Alleged Waste Explained.

Congressman Bland tried to make the issue of the sugar sold through the army sales force and the A. E. F. abroad, amounting, he said, to approximately 22,000,000 pounds, but his attention was again called to the fact that this amounted only to several days candy supply in this country and most of that sold or given away went to adults and children nearly starved.

Following the hearing the question arose informally of controlling cold storage activities in the process of food delivery from producer to consumer. Mr. Hoover suggested control within cold storage circles rather than a too stringent federal control. He pointed to the success of the government's control of the Chicago grain market by allowing the board of trade to legislate for its members. He pointed out that cold storage is a necessary forward step to take care of produce from the time it actually comes into production until such time as it is needed for consumption, but he declared that some steps ought to be taken to legislate out of existence the ability of speculators to buy storage receipts, and without any actual turnover of goods to advance food prices through mere speculative investment and sales.

NO RAIL LEGISLATION EXPECTED THIS YEAR

Cummins Bill Ready For Senate But the Debate on Treay Prevents Action

Washington, D. C.—The ears of Congressmen are now beginning to ring with insistent demands that something be done about the railroads and be done quickly. Five months have elapsed since President Wilson convened Congress in extra session to legislate for America's many reconstruction problems, yet the Republican Congress has failed in almost every instance. As regards the biggest of these problems the Republican majority so far as written "failure to enact" opposite each item on the long list.

Railway legislation is about in this condition: The Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce has finally reported out the revised Cummins bill, but nothing will be done with it until the opponents of the peace treaty and League of Nations tire of obstruction and agree to vote on the question of ratification. The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is still waiting the report of the sub-committee of five on the Esch bill. There is little prospect of the House's passing the measure before the adjournment scheduled for November 10.

The Esch bill provides not for a wholly new arrangement but for amending tthe present laws to faciliate the return of the rail properties and their regulation by the Government.

Cummins Bill Altered.

The Cummins bill, as it will be reported by the full Senate committee, will represent the views of probably 14 of the 17 members, and will differ in some very material points from the original draft, many provisions of which caused protracted debates throughout the country.

As at present drawn the Cummins bill will entirely change the method of rate making heretofore vogue. Rates are now evolved upon the individual articles carried, such as a bushel of wheat, a ton of pig iron, etc. The Senate bill will provide for an adjustment of rates based upon what constitutes a reasonable return on the property investment of the respective roads.

The question of what return a road should be permitted to earn is an important point. Under the present system a railway can make as much as it pleases, circumstances permitting. The bill as drawn shows a modification of the original Cummins idea that aroused the criticism of former Justice Charles Evans Hughes recently. It is planned to allow the railroad 6 per cent on its investment, to receive one-half of the earings from 6 to 7 per cent, and one-quarter of the earnings above 7 per cent. The balance of the excess earnings is to be turned over to a board of transportation as capital for loans to the railroads for extensions, rolling stock, rehabilitation, etc.

The revised Cummins bill will penalize interference with interstate commerce. This is the provision that aroused such determined opposition among labor leaders who maintained the right to strike. The principles of this important point are the same as in the original bill, out it is considerably modified in detail.

Boards Established.

One of the numerous boards proposed to be created for the handling of railroad problems will have control of the wage question, and so will naturally be burdened with many of the responsibilities of the labor problem.

The board of transporation will have many duties in addition to acting as a sort of intermediary banker for railroads needing financial assistance. To this board is assigned the important duty of returning the railroads to their private owners, and of providing for their maintenance and operation until the federal government and the companies shall have settled their accounts The roads obtained financial assistance in large sums from the Government for rehabilitation through federal operation, and at a time when their credit was exhausted, in most instances, and their needs were great. Many of the properties had been permitted to run to seed before Uncle Sam took control.

With the radical differences already in sight in the railroad bills to be reported to the Senate and the House, it can be readily seen that there is little likelihood that both houses will pass their respective measures and agree on a compromise to be enacted into law, all before January 1.

SOLDIERS QUARTET AND HAWAIIAN CO. AT EMPIRE

Unusual Program at This Theatre Tonight in Addition to the Regular Film Starring Charley Chaplin

The Empire theatre is presenting tonight a varied and out of the ordinary program. They have secured the Soldiers' Quartette, which comes under the direction of the White & Myers Lyceum Bureau of Kansas City. The first part of their program they will appear in uniform and give many of the popular and lively trench and war songs. In the next number they change costumes and appear as a Lyceum quartette, giving up to the minute songs, your favorites, in standard and classical music. The boys specialize in fine singing and clever rollicking fun. Their best work is shown in their male quartette numbers, the parts being properly balanced, and each member has a strong natural voice improved by years of natural training.

Another number on tonight's program is Kailu Brothers and Company. The company consists of three men and two ladies who will give musical and dancing numbers. This is a genuine Hawaiian company, and they promise a high class musical and dancing program. In addition to these two numbers there will be the regular moving picture program. Tonight it is an unusual picture featuring Charlie Chaplin in "A Night at the Show." This picture has had a very successful run in the cities where it has already been shown.

Selling Livestock Co-operatively.

The co-operative live stock shipping association affords a means whereby the farmer feeding stock in less than carlots can get just what his stock brings on the central market, less shipping expenses. So far as marketing is concerned ehis organization puts the small feeder on a level with the man who feeds a carload at a time.

Caldwell county, through the efforts of the farm bureau, is now included in the list of Missouri counties where stock is marketed co-operativeiy. Meetings were held in Hamilton and Cowgill and the plan of co-operative shipping was explained by the extension agent in marketing from the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. The farmers shipping from these points then organized two associations. Each association employs a manager working on a commission to handle the stock of its members.

To make co-operative marketing more efficient, the college is arranging for three-day short courses for Missouri managers, to be held in two of the principal markets. At these short courses instruction will be given in grading stock and in accounting. The managers will also have an opportunity to discuss their common marketing problems.

Balanced Ration for Dairy Cows.

Most Missouri dairy cows are not producing as well as they should because their feed is not properly balanced. Protein and energy (carbohydrates and fat) are the main things to be considered in a balanced ration. They must be in the right proportion in order to feed most economically. The ordinary farm roughages are lacking in protein. This protein must be supplied in the grain unless the dairyman has plenty of clover, alfalfa, soybean or cowpea hay and even then some protein must be supplied with grain.

Protein is therefore the main consideration in buying grain for dairy cows. Buy the feed which supplies the most protein for the least money. Cottonseed meal, even at its present high price, supplies the cheapest protein. Next in order come linseed oil meal, gluten feed, dried brewer's grains and wheat bran. These are the feeds to buy and mix with the home grown grains.

For a 1,000-pound cow producing 20 pounds of 4 per cent milk a day, the following balanced ration will be found good. It will keep up the milk flow. It is also economical. It furnishes the required food nutrients in just the right proportions: 30 lbs. corn silage, 8 lbs. clober hay, 2 lbs. cottonseed meal .

Silage and clover or alfalfa hay is the best and cheapest roughage. It should be the aim of every dairyman to grow an abundance of these feeds on his farm. If he does not have these roughages, but does have silage, timothy hay, mixed hay, corn fodder or a combination of them, he must vary his grain mixture to supply more protein. A good grain mixture to supplement such roughages would be cornmeal, cottonseed meal or oil meal, and wheat bran mixed in equal parts by weight. Another mixture might be made up of 100 pounds each of cornmeal and ground oats, and 200 pounds each of cottonseed meal and wheat bran.

If the roughage is entirely of clover, alfalfa, soybean or cowpea hay, reduce the protein in the grain mixture somewhat as follows: 300 lbs. corn meal, 200 lbs. ground oats, 100 lbs. each of cottonseed meal and wheat bran. There are other mixtures easily prepared, and the University of Missouri College of Agriculture or your county agent will be glad to help you solve your feeding problems.

In buying cottonseed meal for feeding see that the analysis on the sack shows 36 to 41 per cent protein.
